
These two components explain 86.06 % of the point variability.